Advance of the Papal Army on Garibaldi's Revolutionists-Garibaldi Retires Towards Italy-The Insurgent Camps Broken Up. FLORENCE, Nov. 4, 1867.

The movements of the Papal army, which, wince its repulses in the provinces, has been gradually consolidating and reforming in Rome, have been watched for some days past with great anxiety, as it was reported that the troops of His Hollness would assume the offensive against Garibaldi immediately after the entry of the French.

This condition of affairs has been brought to a serious crisis by the action of the Pontifical army. Yesterday (Sunday) morning a large body of the Papal soldiers advanced from the works around Rome to the field. They were well supported by artillery. They marched on Garibaldi's headquarters position. situated between Tivoli-which is about eighteen miles east northeast of Rome-and Monte Rotondo.

An engagement took place immediately between the opposing forces. The fight was long and obstinately contested, a great many men being killed and wounded on both sides.

During the past few days General Garibaldi concentrated his forces around his former position at Monte Rotondo, fully supported by bis offic s.

Yesterday afternoon Signori Corte, Crispi and Sives, ardent supporters of his cause, and formerly a deputation from the revolutionary society, begged of him to withdraw, as the Italian troops had crossed the frontier.

Garibaldi refused their entreaties, saying that he "did not value his life in such a cause," and that " a soldier ought not to count the number of his enemies."

Signor Corte replied, giving his assent to the last observation of Garibaldi, but adding "A general should." The deputation then left the camp of the

This morning Garibaldi, with about three thousand men of his command, and having two guns, moved for Tivoli to join Nicotera, one of his officers.

In the mean time the Papal Zonaves, who were advancing, and not by any means delatory of action, had taken Tivoli without noise at the point of the bayonet.

Garibald 's force did not know this fact, and were marching along towards the same point, singlag national airs. When they arrived at Metana they were surprised by seven battalions of the Papal army, supported by twelve guns, who attacked them in front and on both finnka

The battle ground was among hills, with a country road running on both sides.

The fighting was continued flercely for over an bour. In the hottest moment of the engagement Garibaldi bad to be dragged away from the battle.

His troops suffered much loss, and retreated towards Monto Rotondo, pursued by the soldiers of the Pope.

Here the fight was renewed, and continued of the Sabines for over two hours, when the Garibaldian rereat became an utter rout.
